

Documenting the Jews of Latin America

Adriana M. Brodsky and Laura A. Leibman

Professors Adriana M. Brodsky (St. Mary's College of Maryland) and Laura A. Leibman (Reed College) will speak on "Documenting the Jews of Latin America," derived from their recently published book of collected essays titled Jews Across the Americas: A Source Book, 1492-Present (New York University Press, 2023). This presentation builds on past Taubman Symposia that dealt with Jews in Latin America (Ilan Stavans, Ruth Behar, Graciela Machkofsky, Marjorie Agosin).

With historical focus on Latin American Jewry, the speakers begin by orienting us to their topic, showing how the inclusion of Latin American Jewish experiences enhances our understanding of the experiences of North American Jews. Unfolding their subject chronologically, they highlight some of the book's sources, which illustrate various aspects of Latin American Jewish life. They conclude by suggesting how the inclusion of Jewish Latin America and the Caribbean changes what we know about Jewish American History.

"A groundbreaking sourcebook capturing the historical diversity and cultural breadth of American Jews across Latin America"
—NYU Press

"The authors "widen our vision of the diversity of Jewish life on this side of the Atlantic...a stellar contribution to the teaching of modern Jewish history"
—book review

"A valuable anthology of diverse sources that will surprise and reward all who are interested in the history of Jews in the Americas"
—book review
